

Kygo performing at last year's Palm Tree Music Festival

The tropics come to the East Coast on June 25 with the Palm Tree Music Festival and its cadre of unmissable sets by global music icons. Setting the stage for summer, this one-day event is hosted by lifestyle brand Palm Tree Crew, and Norwegian DJ, songwriter and record producer Kygo conceptualized the festival alongside manager Myles Shear. On the lineup? Kygo joins Disclosure, Claptone, Thomas Jack, Forester and Haywood.

After enjoying a set of stellar performances, guest can cool down with all-inclusive soft drinks, water, beer, wine and canned cocktails. And the party doesn't end at the stage thanks to lawn games, sponsored activations and access to food trucks for purchase.

The festival also offers a number of Palm Club Packages designed to create a luxury experience. Premium views on elevated risers and an exclusive table lounge area with catered food and beverages ensure a soiree of 10 guests will have a premium festival experience. Every possible amenity is provided with VIP packages: concierge services, bathrooms, lounge chairs and official merchandise gifts. Did we mention the VIP and Palm Club tickets also come with all-inclusive liquor? Sit back with munchables and a cold drink and enjoy a musical experience you'll never forget. For the more mobile, RVs are provided in an exclusive area for up to 20 guests. This includes a dedicated host for each RV and golf cart shuttle transportation between the parking area and festival.

"We are so excited to be bringing the Palm Tree Music Festival back to the Hamptons for its second year in an even bigger way," says Palm Tree Crew co-founder Shear. "Expanding the festival brings us one step closer to our goal of curating amazing events across the globe where we bring all of our favorite brands and talent under one umbrella." He continues, "We are striving to build an experience where people can come together with their friends and family and enjoy the tropical vibes."
